Well after several years of using Twitter only sporadically or for news feeds for the eLearning app, I decided to create a completely new Twitter account for my Spanish, language, family, and Latin American tweets. As my other account is dedicated to software development issues, I don't think too many of you would find that material very interesting:) So please update to the username MusicalSpanish (after my first book:) The link is on the side of the blog as well as here: MusicalSpanish Twitter Account

Read more about this here over on my blog!
